MENTAL RETARDATION PUBLICATIONS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

This bibliography consists of publications of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare concerned with mental retardation. The references are arranged under broad subject headings. A brief description of the contents of the publication and how it may be obtained are included for each entry. A subject index for all publications will be found on pages 48-57 , and an author index on page 58. This bibliography supersedes the "Mental Retardation Publications" dated December 1966, and its supplement dated June 30,1967.

Publications of private agencies and of State and local governments have not been included. Also excluded are reports which were financed, in whole or in part, with Federal funds, but published and distributed by a private agency or group. Information about such publications may be secured directly from the agencies concerned.

Not mentioned in this publication but available free of charge from the Secretary's Committee on Mental Retardation is "Programs for the Handicapped" which is issued periodically and covers a variety of topics relating to the Handicapped.

Special recognition is given to Valerie J. Noble, a student at Colby College, Waterville, Maine, who aided in this revision during a month of work experience with the Secretary's Committee on Mental Retardation.

   Compilation of important and recent developments in mental retardation are provided by this supplement; available foreign literature is included. In general, main subject headings represent processes, programs, treatments, and diseases and conditions associated with mental retardation.

10. Borlick, Martha M. Guide for Public Health Nurses Working with Children from the Developmental Point of View. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1961, 35 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 20 cents.

    This pamphlet presents various facets entering into work with children, such as case finding, recording, analysis of families, appraisal of the mental, physical, and social development of boys and girls, and the formation of plans for working with families.

11. Child Health Projects for Mentally Retarded Children. The role of the Social Worker. Washington, Children's Bureau, 1963, 50 p. Available from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

    This is a report of a workshop on mental retardation for social workers in maternal and child health projects, April 1961. The papers deal with social workers in public health programs and in community programs in urban areas, social work research, and community organization in public health.

12. The Child Who Is Mentally Retarded. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1956, 23 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 10 cents each.

    This pamphlet, primarily prepared for parents who suspect or are newly aware that their child is mentally retarded, contains information about symptoms, causes, care, training, and services for the mentally retarded.

13. Clifford, Stewart H. High-Risk Pregnancy: I. Prevention of Prematurity the Sine Qua Non for Reduction in Mental Retardation and Other Neurologic Disorders. The New England Journal of Medicine, 271 (5): 243-249, July 30, 1964. Available in reprint form (with Part II by Jacobson and Reid) from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

    This article points out that the total application of present obstetric knowledge and methodology can significantly reduce perinatal mortality and by so doing reduce the perinatal morbidity and its effects on the central nervous system of the newborn.

14. Dybwad, Gunnar. The Dynamics of Mental Retardation. Washington, Division of Mental Retardation, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1965, 9 p. Available from the Division of Mental Retardation, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201

The author brings sharply into focus the need to abandon static concepts in the field of mental retardation. The publication is based on a study in Montreal, but the working and meaningful dynamism infused into extant concepts transcends geographic and cultural limitations.

15. Extending Clinical Services for Mentally Retarded Children at the Community Level. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1965, 19 p. Available from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

    In this publication, a creative approach to the search for ways to provide needed services to mentally retarded children and their families is presented; a successful service is described.

16. Franklin, Owen E. Serving the Mentally Retarded. Public Welfare, p. 281-284, October 1965. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

    In this article, attention is directed to the needs of the mentally retarded and the responsibility of public welfare to help promote the development of the continuum of services to give the retarded a better chance. Programs within and outside the home and promotion of community services are suggested.

17. Historical Perspective on Mental Retardation During the Decade 1954-1964. A Compilation of Articles in Children. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1964, 314 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price $1.75.

    Compilation of articles originally appearing in Children Magazine, 1954-1964, are presented against a backdrop of the historical development of services for the mentally retarded in the Children's Bureau's programs. The articles on mental retardation vary over a wide range--from one portraying the reaction of a mother to her retarded child to a series directed to the highly skilled professional worker with the mentally retarded.

18. Institute on Nutrition Services in Mental Retardation Problems. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1963, 119 p. Available from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

    This is a report of the second Institute on the general subject of nutrition and mental retardation.

19. Jacobson, Howard N. and Reid, Duncan E. High-Risk Pregnancy. II. A Pattern of Comprehensive Maternal and Child Care. The New England Journal of Medicine, 217(6): 302-307, August 6, 1964. Available in reprint form (with Part I by Clifford) from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

In this article, shortages in maternal and child-health services and their socioeconomic effects are considered briefly and a practicable program to help rectify them is suggested.

20. Jaslow, Robert I. A Modern Plan for Modern Services to the Mentally Retarded. Washington, Division of Mental Retardation, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1967, 12 p. Available from the Division of Mental Retardation, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

A statement of the basic philosophy of the Division of Mental Retardation is embodied in six major points which expound a model for the provision of services to the retarded residing in a community. Manifested throughout the model is the idea of economy, coupled with the provision of an equitable share of services for the retarded.

21. MacQueen, John C. Services for Children With Multiple Handicaps. Children 13(12): 55-59, March-April 1966. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article describes how one State improved and expanded its crippled children's program for the mentally retarded as a result of the 1963 Federal legislation providing financial support.

22. Manning, Helen C. Mas que Pan. Washington, Office of Research and Demonstrations, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1962, 25 p. Available from the Office of Research and Demonstrations, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This booklet presents a close-up view of recipients of public assistance and some of the problems they face. It shows how social services of public assistance help people solve their problems. Results are described of some special projects showing the value of social services.

23. Mental Retardation, Its Biological Factors. Bethesda, Maryland, National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Reprinted 1966, PHSP No. 1152, 26 p. Available from the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This pamphlet focuses on the factors which cause some physical or chemical damage to the brain or nervous system and the research through which neurology is providing prevention and treatment.

24. The Mentally Retarded...Their New Hope. Washington, President's Committee on Mental Retardation, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1966, 20 p. Available without charge from the President's Committee on Mental Retardation, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This booklet is part of a national campaign to inform the public about the scope of mental retardation and what must be done to assure the mentally retarded their rightful place in our democratic society.

25. Oberman, J. William, et al. A Program for Mentally Retarded Children in a Child Health Clinic Setting. Clinical proceedings 22(5) pp. 129-139 May 1966. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article notes that the child health clinic appears to be a logical service to extend to the mentally retarded. The focus on continuity of care allows an approach emphasizing the physical and emotional needs of the mentally retarded child during the important formative years. The longitudinal observations of the child health clinic can be made available to educational and training facilities to further extend continuity of care into the school years.

26. Outpatient Psychiatric Clinics. Annual Statistical Report. Data on Patients 1963. Washington, Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1965,115 p. Available from the Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This release is a compilation of statistical data on patients of outpatient psychiatric clinics in the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1963, and is based on Annual Tables reported to the National Institute of Mental Health Authorities and the Veterans Administration.

28. Pearson, Paul H., The Forgotten Patient: Medical Management of the Multiple Handicapped Retarded. Public Health Reports, 80(10):915-918, October 1965. Available from the Division of Mental Retardation, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

    This article emphasizes that correction or amelioration of the physical defects of the moderately, severely, and profoundly retarded child is the foundation on which the total program of treatment, social and educational, is based.

29. Pearson, Paul H., and Menefee, Allen R., Medical and Social Management of the Mentally Retarded. GP, XXXI(2): 78-92, February 1965. Available in reprint form from the Division of Mental Retardation, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

    Major emphasis in this article is placed on the ways in which the physician can reduce the physical handicaps often associated with mental retardation and develop with the family a comprehensive program that will enable the retardate to achieve his maximum potential.

30. The Problem of Mental Retardation. Washington, Secretary's Committee on Mental Retardation, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1966, 22 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 15 cents.

    This booklet is designed as a basic introduction to mental retardation and an overview of the problems related to it. Mental retardation is defined, ways in which the patient can be helped are given, and the causes and the future of the problem are discussed.

31. El Problema Del Retraso Mental. Washington, Secretary's Committee on Mental Retardation, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1966, 22 p. Available from the Secretary's Committee on Mental Retardation, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This booklet is designed as a basic introduction to mental retardation and an overview of the problems related to it. Mental retardation is defined, ways in which the patient can be helped are given, and the causes and the future of the problem are discussed.

32. Report of the Mission to Denmark and Sweden. President's Panel on Mental Retardation. Washington, Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1962, 48 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 35 cents.

The report of this mission to Denmark and Sweden emphasizes factual information and promising developments which might be adopted for use in the United States. It includes their experience with prevention, diagnosis, care, treatment, education, and rehabilitation of the retarded.

33. Report of the Mission to the USSR. President's Panel on Mental Retardation. Washington, Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1962, 64 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C., 20402 - Price 40 cents.

This is a report of a mission of the President's Panel to study the psychoeducational services, research, and biomedical aspects of the problem of mental retardation in the Soviet Union.

34. Report of the Task Force on Behavioral and Social Research. President's Panel on Mental Retardation. Washington, Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1964, 73 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 45 cents.

This report includes the major contents of the working papers of the Task Force on Behavioral and Social Research. It reflects what the Panel members felt were needed areas of research emphasis in mental retardation, the major barrier to such research, and the major actions which would significantly facilitate progress in the prevention and treatment of mental retardation.

35. Report of the Task Force on Coordination. President's Panel on Mental Retardation. Washington, Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1963, 46 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 35 cents.

This report was prepared as an aid to each State in creating a plan of action to combat mental retardation. It describes the elements and essentials of coordination as well as the need for coordination of services to the retarded, training and research, and prevention and public information.

36. Report of the Task Force on Prevention, Clinical Services and Residential Care. President's Panel on Mental Retardation, Washington, Public Health Service, 1962, 57 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 40 cents.

    This report is a summary of ideas and materials collected by the President's Panel covering the field of prevention, clinical services and residential care, both from the medical and behavioral science point of view.

37. Research Relating to Mentally Retarded Children. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1966, 126 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C., 20402 - Price 65 cents.

    This represents a listing of all research projects on mental retardation which have been reported to the Children's Bureau Clearinghouse for Research in Child Life since 1949. It includes title of the project, principal investigator, and publication references.

Through the use of parent group meetings which have an educational and orientation focus, the parent's understanding of the child's problem is increased. The group orientation procedure also avoids anxiety-producing delays not only for the parents but for clinic staff.

174. Beck, Helen L. Casework With Parents of Mentally Retarded Children. American Journal of Orthopsychiatry, 32(5):870-877, October 1962. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

A case history is used to demonstrate casework treatment with families of mentally retarded children. The case material illustrates the treatment process and goals reached. Casework processes, techniques, areas of intervention, and goals are also presented.

175. Beck, Helen. The Closed, Short-Term Group: A Treatment Adjunct for Parents of Mentally Retarded Children. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1965, 11 p. Available from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

The discussion in this paper is concerned with evaluation of the dynamics and process of closed, short-term groups in the treatment of parents of retarded children. It includes discussion of group goals, size, composition, patterns, management, and the role and function of the group leader.

176. Beck, Helen L. Counseling Parents of Retarded Children. Children, 6(6):225-230, November-December 1959. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

Casework counseling is described as a process of casework treatment of parents of retarded children, based on diagnostic findings and aimed at ego support and adjustment to reality concerning the child's condition. Parents must understand the nature of the child's condition, face their own feelings, and learn modes of handling the child.

177. Dependent Children and Their Families. Washington, Social and Rehabilitation Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1963, 31 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 20 cents.

This highlights from a national survey conducted in 1961 are presented; characteristics and financial circumstances of 910,000 families including 2,733,000 boys and girls receiving AFDC were considered.

178. Dittmann, Laura L. The Family of the Child in an Institution. American Journal of Mental Deficiency, 66(5):759-765, March 1962. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article discusses the factors which may make it difficult for parents to maintain or develop meaningful ties with their retarded child who is in an institution.

179. Drayer, Carl and Schlessinger, Elfriede G. The Informing Interview. American Journal of Mental Deficiency, 65(3):363-370, November 1960. Available in reprint form from Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This is a description of the purpose and techniques of the informing interview which is held with parents following the initial diagnostic study of a child to review the findings and outline a suggested program of management.

180. Fudge, Celia. Some Notes on Working With Parents of Hydrocephalic Children. The Almoner, A Journal of Medical Social Work, 15(9):262-267, December 1962. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article points out some problems facing families of hydrocephalic children and the support of the family needs in this very difficult situation.

181. Kramm, Elizabeth. Families of Mongoloid Children. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1963, 56 p. Available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price 25 cents.

This is a report of a study of 50 families who had a mongoloid child living in the home. It highlights, in the words of the parents, what the problems have been to them, what they did or failed to do about the child, and what their ultimate adjustment has been.

182. O'Neill, Jane. Siblings of the Retarded II - Individual Counseling. Children, 12(6):226-229, November-December 1965. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This paper explains the importance of using proper social work techniques in counseling with the siblings of a retarded child.

183. Parsons, Mabel H. A Home Economist in Service to Families With Mental Retardation. Children, VII(5):184-189, September-October 1960. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article describes the role of a home economist as a member of a research-oriented multidisciplinary team in the Pine School Project. The project provided services to a selected group of families in which at least one parent and one child appear to be mentally retarded. The ways in which the home economist helped the families improve their home life are described.

184. Schild, Sylvia. Parents of Children with Phenylketonuria. Children, XI(3):92-96, May-June 1964. Available in reprint form from Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article discusses group meetings for parents of children with phenylketonuria to bring the parents emotional support and to give them further interpretation about the disease and its treatment.

185. Schreiber, Meyer and Feeley, Mary. Siblings of the Retarded I - A Guided Group Experience. Children, 12(6):221-225, November-December 1965. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article describes the findings of a group discussion demonstration conducted for selected normal adolescents to assist them in examining, understanding and clarifying their role as siblings of a retarded child.

186. Selected Reading Suggestions for Parents of Mentally Retarded Children. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Revised, 1967, 32 p. Available from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This annotated reference list identifies some of the easily available and recent books and pamphlets which cover the areas of greatest interest to parents. The topics covered include the following: the problem of mental retardation, personal experiences of parents of retarded children, managing the retarded child at home, the school aged child, teenagers and young adults, living away from home, some specific handicapping conditions, directories and lists of resources, and general information on growth and development of children.

187. Solnit, Albert J., and Stark, Mary H. Mourning and the Birth of a Defective Child. The Psychoanalytic Study of the Child, 16:523-537, 1961. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This is a report of investigation of the grief reaction of mothers who have given birth to defective children. It demonstrates that the physician's awareness of the mourning process enables him to provide effective therapeutic help to the mother and her child.

188. Stone, Nellie D and Parnicky, Joseph J. Factors in Child Placement: Parental Response to Congenital Defect, Social Work 11(2), 35-43, April 1966. Available in reprint form from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

This article describes a study conducted of 103 families which revealed that adequate parental knowledge of their child's condition, together with warm family relations and supportive social situations, are factors associated with adaptations of a family to the presence of a mentally retarded child in the home.

189. Wolff, Ilse S. Nursing Role in Counseling Parents of Mentally Retarded Children. Washington, Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, 1964, 15 p. Available from the Children's Bureau, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Washington, D.C. 20201.

The author identifies some elements of the supportive relationship of a nurse to the parents of a mentally retarded child such as supporting decisions, promoting communication, and reassurance.
